MODULE OVERVIEW

This two-day course prepares managers and HR practitioners to handle people issues more effectively by understanding the various employment regulations and effective methods to handle disciplinary matters. Managing HR in an organisation is extremely vital to ensure the business goals and objectives are met. The HR department is entrusted to lead and manage the HR topics that are evolving.

To achieve this objective, an inclusive operating climate is necessary. As such, the involvement of line managers or people managers must be enlisted and trained in managing people effectively. The Masterclass prepares managers and HR practitioners to handle people issues more effectively by understanding the various employment regulations and effective methods to handle disciplinary matters.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Develop a good understanding of the various employment laws in Malaysia.
- View disciplinary and people management matters from a legal viewpoint.
- Identify the source of people and disciplinary issues and address the root causes.
- Apply proper measures to address disciplinary issues in accordance with the employment laws.
- Identify an effective early intervention to avoid labour disputes.
- Resolve disciplinary and people matters effectively and in a timely manner.
- Improve workflow and productivity by developing and cultivating a disciplined workforce.
